Library Health Report (K. Makens)

Credit cards are now being accepted beginning in June. The hand out provided by Ms. Makens shows the collection of money. Credit card payments are accepted online only. Collection revenue goes into the general fund.

Digital Bridge

Digital Bridge is a project to increase technical literacy in the community surrounding the Bragtown branch. There are three tracks: one for adults, one for teens, and one for children.

The adults begin learning basic computer literacy skills and work their way up to technology skills that will make them more employable, able to pursue higher education and/or just function effectively in the modern world. This differs from the library’s regular computer classes in the amount of time and assistance the participants receive. The amount of time also makes it possible to teach beyond basic email and internet searching. Participants each receive a low cost desktop or laptop from United Way for participating.

Children and teens will learn different STEAM skills. They assemble computers (Raspberry Pi’s) they will be allowed to keep. They will also learn how to repair traditional computers and build a server. In the current session, the teen and children’s group have been combined because it is a small group of older children and younger teens. The group will be exposed to different programming languages and building electronics with the ability to work on what interests them most.

The project is being funded by the LSTA grant.
