Abstract:	The Old North Durham Architecture Slides, 1981-1984 collection contains slides of buildings and renovation work done in the Old North Durham neighborhood from 1981-1984.
Scope and Content:	The Old North Durham Architecture Slides, 1981-1984 collection contains slides of houses and other buildings in the Old North Durham neighborhood from 1981-1984, including some images of renovation work done on many of the dwellings structures (since both dwellings and other buildings).
Related Materials:	Neighborhood Housing Services of Durham Papers
	Durham County Government Slides and Photographs
Restrictions:	This collection is open for research.
Biographical/Historical Note:	These slides were found in the attic of a house in the Old North Durham neighborhood in 2014. It is unclear who created the slides or why they were in the attic of the house they were found in. Old North Durham is one of the oldest neighborhoods in Durham. The location of the neighborhood was converted from farmland into one of Durham's first suburbs in the late 1800s. A trolley line built in 1901 ran north from Main Street along Mangum St. Street, which spurred development in the area. It was a thriving area in Durham through the 1950s. Following integration in the 1950s and 1960s in Durham, East Trinity Ave. Street became one of the first areas in Durham where African-Americans bought homes and lived in primarily white neighborhoods. In the late 1960s Old North Durham experienced a social and economic decline similar to many other urban neighborhoods across the decline similar to many other urban neighborhoods across the country as the population migrated from urban areas to outlying suburbs. However, during the late 1970s and early 1980s a major effort was undertaken to revitalize the neighborhood. With the creation of Durham Neighborhood Housing Services in 1981, neighborhood residents joined city officials, business, and banking leaders to secure the financial support for home improvements and renovations.

Condition Notes:	The images are in excellent condition.
Organization of Collection:	The organization of the slides reflects how they were found in a metal slide box, which appears to be in order of streets in Old North Durham.
