Biographical / Historical

---

Ralph Rogers is a native Durham businessman and pharmacist. Along with his father, he operated Rogers Drug Company at the corner of Parrish and Mangum streets for fifty years.

---

Scope and Contents

---

This collection includes slides that depict buildings in downtown Durham from the 1950s to the 1990s. These photographs were taken by Rogers and show how the streetscape changed during this fifty year period. There are many images of buildings that have since been destroyed, and some photos even show buildings just after demolition.

---

Arrangement

---

The slides are foldered according to the slide carousel in which they were originally housed. For the most part, images are grouped geographically. The order of images in the folders and in the web exhibit is roughly the same, and it follows the order used by Ralph Rogers during presentations.
